Facing Up to Race:

PERSONAL VOICES:

Come, China
and color in our society as a whole.

and color in our society as a whole—become the battleground for the shape of our individual lives and hopes. Because the battleground for the shape of our individual lives and hopes is something that is going to be fought over. We need to be ready to believe that institutional racism is something that is going to be fought over, just as we need to be ready to believe that institutional sexism is something that is going to be fought over. We need to be ready to believe that institutional class is something that is going to be fought over.

We need to be ready to believe that institutional racism is something that is going to be fought over, just as we need to be ready to believe that institutional sexism is something that is going to be fought over. We need to be ready to believe that institutional class is something that is going to be fought over.

We need to be ready to believe that institutional racism is something that is going to be fought over, just as we need to be ready to believe that institutional sexism is something that is going to be fought over. We need to be ready to believe that institutional class is something that is going to be fought over.

We need to be ready to believe that institutional racism is something that is going to be fought over, just as we need to be ready to believe that institutional sexism is something that is going to be fought over. We need to be ready to believe that institutional class is something that is going to be fought over.

We need to be ready to believe that institutional racism is something that is going to be fought over, just as we need to be ready to believe that institutional sexism is something that is going to be fought over. We need to be ready to believe that institutional class is something that is going to be fought over.

We need to be ready to believe that institutional racism is something that is going to be fought over, just as we need to be ready to believe that institutional sexism is something that is going to be fought over. We need to be ready to believe that institutional class is something that is going to be fought over.

We need to be ready to believe that institutional racism is something that is going to be fought over, just as we need to be ready to believe that institutional sexism is something that is going to be fought over. We need to be ready to believe that institutional class is something that is going to be fought over.

We need to be ready to believe that institutional racism is something that is going to be fought over, just as we need to be ready to believe that institutional sexism is something that is going to be fought over. We need to be ready to believe that institutional class is something that is going to be fought over.

We need to be ready to believe that institutional racism is something that is going to be fought over, just as we need to be ready to believe that institutional sexism is something that is going to be fought over. We need to be ready to believe that institutional class is something that is going to be fought over.

We need to be ready to believe that institutional racism is something that is going to be fought over, just as we need to be ready to believe that institutional sexism is something that is going to be fought over. We need to be ready to believe that institutional class is something that is going to be fought over.